For Some Boxes: Repaying the Rebbe

Dovid Kopel

Rabbi Naiman שליט״א asked me if I wanted to help my Rebbe, HaRav Nochum Lansky שליט״א. I said, “Anything.” He told me that Rebbe needed boxes for ספרים. So I bought about a hundred boxes and brought them over to his house.

When I got there, Rebbe had the biggest smile. He was so happy to see me, and so appreciative. Then he tried to pay me — or at least indicated that he wanted to. He said, “We’ll have to settle up for what I owe you.” I felt the tears forming. I just said, “It’s my pleasure.”

For some boxes? For someone who truly brought you עולם הבא (the World to Come)? Someone who gave you a דרך התורה (path in Torah)? And I would take money for some boxes? In hindsight, I almost wish I had taken the check — just so I could frame it as a reminder. Sometimes the simplest things teach us the most.
